

Xincheng Zhang's website bio

My name is Xincheng Zhang and I am a college student in mathematics major of University of Toronto. My company called MB is committed to producing a product called "Memory Bread" to help people better remember things they need to remember in a short time while studying or working. My goal is to help people save time as much as possible without side effects in this very stressful society, and my aspirations are for people around the world to recognize and be willing to use this product and benefit from it. My related achievements include the Best Creative Award and the Biotechnology Award in high school. I hope everyone can bravely try it for the first time, and I guarantee you will fall in love with this feeling.